THE HSC PEDIATRIC CENTER

The HSC Pediatric Center is a pediatric specialty hospital that provides rehabilitation and transitional care to children and young adults from infancy through 21 years of age. Located in northeast Washington, D.C., The HSC Pediatric Center is a leader in providing highly effective care for children with complex medical conditions and disabilities.

Family is central to everything we do, and our approach involves helping families understand and live with the challenges ahead. For some of our patients this may mean adapting to a lifelong issue, while for others it means learning how to do simple tasks. As a result, our programs are organized to provide for a variety of needs, including:

- burns and wounds
- congenital heart disease
- developmental disabilities
- feeding disorders
- intellectual disabilities
- lung diseases
- traumatic injury
- ventilator-dependency
- and many other medically complex conditions.

From a child's first day at The HSC Pediatric Center, our staff begins to plan and prepare for the return home. Each child is involved in the everyday activities of playing, learning and growing while receiving expert medical care that only a pediatric hospital can provide.

The HSC Pediatric Center provides a step-down care environment to give families a better understanding of their child's health care needs, as well as offer:

- A team approach that includes pediatricians, nurse practitioners, nurses, therapists, psychologists, social workers and other health care specialists to meet individual care needs
- Around-the-clock care for patients
- Complete caregiver training to meet the child's daily needs at home.

INPATIENT PROGRAMS

Medical programs at The HSC Pediatric Center serve children with a wide range of medical conditions, such as heart and lung disease or feeding problems. Most of these patients come to us from other hospitals, and are working on a safe transition home. They may need more time to work on feeding or for their lungs to grow, or the family may need more time to learn to care for their child.

Our Rehabilitation program is one of the few pediatric rehabilitation programs in the area. Children in the rehabilitation program usually come to us after an injury, illness or surgery, and work with our team of specialists to achieve their best level of function in order to thrive at home.

EXTENDED STAY PROGRAMS

The Developmental program provides comprehensive care for patients whose health care needs cannot be safely met in a community setting. Children admitted to the program are often dependent on medical technology and receive care in a supportive environment that focuses on overall quality of life and maintaining good health. Because of the extended length of stay for many of these patients, they attend school outside The HSC Pediatric Center, if medically appropriate.

Our Medical Extended Stay program provides extended care for children who are chronically ill and require an advanced level of care. These patients have a variety of complex conditions and higher overall care needs. Despite their medical fragility, some of these patients are able to attend school on individualized schedules, while others benefit from participating in community outings.
